Media Advisory

Taylor University College Prof part of X-Files Movie

Dr. Natasha Duquette cast as a nun in the July 25, 2008 release from 20th Century Fox.

Edmonton, AB, July 25, 2008: A chance meeting on an airplane led to a movie role for Edmonton English Professor Natasha Duquette, and she will see the film tonight for the first time.

Dr. Duquette met director Chris Carter on a flight and was invited to be part of the filming in Vancouver. She had a very small role, but was delighted to meet Gillian Anderson during the production.

"I'll be very anxious tonight to see if I'm actually in the movie," says Dr. Duquette, "because sometimes things get cut from movies. However, it was a fun experience either way!"

Dr. Duquette is available for comment on the experience from interested media outlets – especially if her role made it into the final print.

About Taylor University College and Seminary

Taylor University College and Seminary was founded as the Christian Training Institute in 1939 by E.P. Wahl, and later became North American Baptist College and Edmonton Baptist Seminary. In 2003, following accreditation by the Government of Alberta as a university college, the institution was renamed Taylor University College and Seminary in honor of renowned humanitarian and church planter J. Hudson Taylor. Taylor Seminary is also accredited by the Association of Theological Seminaries. Since the first classes in 1940, thousands of students have taken some or all of their post-secondary education at the school and have distinguished themselves in life-long service around the world.
